Background

My first interests focused on Participatory-Action-Research methods and processes. These were applied to the study of citizen participation in urban planning and urban movements, which nurtured my PhD dissertation in 2000. Afterwards, I held teaching positions in different universities of Spain, Portugal and Hong Kong. In parallel to my academic career I also worked professionally at the Municipal Housing Department in Vigo (2000-2002) and occasionally as a consultant in several urban plans across Spain. Other topics I have covered in my research are urban sustainability, segregation, housing, density, globalisation, mobility and governance. These concerns were developed in different cities (mainly Porto, Vigo, Madrid and Hong Kong, but also during short stays in Medellín, Chicago, Beijing, Berlin, Amsterdam, Buenos Aires, etc.). In addition I have participated quite often in various social movements. This led me to focus, in particular, on the squatters' movement over several decades and to help launching the activist-research network SqEK (Squatting Europe Kollektive) in 2009. From 2011 onwards I widened my critical approach in the fields of urban sociology and social movements with the study of anti-neoliberal, pro-democracy and pro-commons movements such as the 15M / Indignados in Spain and the Umbrella Movement in Hong Kong.
